Yet the fact remains that students have no input into the tenure process, even though its results determine the type of education we will receive by determining who will teach. And, although officially teaching, researched, and "community service" are weighed equally in decisions,

This has led many students to conclude that students and education are of only secondary importance to the University. Six out of ten entering students do not graduate; according to official University statistics.

the political history of ucscd

UCSD has played an important role—as does the entire UC system—in the maintenance and support of the U.S. war machine.

defense of their action they will raise the two icons: Academic Freedom and Rational Discussion.

Also in April, 200 students occupied the Institute for Pure and Applied Science at Muir College for about 2 days.

May 11, 200 people staged a sit-in in the APIS (Applied Physics and Information Science, now EECS) Department, again protesting UCSD complicity with the war machine, and joined supporters at the end of the day once again.

Spring of 1971 saw 3,000 students and community members attempt to shut down NEL, following a Crazy Times article urging them to do just that.

Opposition to war recruiting and research continued. November 1, 1972, 200 students stopped a Navy recruiter. November 7, 250 students protested Marine recruitment, and one professor was disciplined for his part in that action.

1970 protesting the invasion of Cambodia and the shooting of students at Kent State and Jackson State universities.

In February, 1969, a group of students and faculty attempted to bar recruiters from the Naval Aviation Corps and the Marine Corps Officer Training Program from entering the Office of Career Educational Planning and Placement. Military recruitment-tolerated and encouraged by the University even during the height of the Vietnam War-supported U.S. imperialism, argued the 60-80 people who actually blocked the entrance, and thus could not be considered part of the University's function as an educational institution.

In November, a CIA recruiter was forced to leave campus by students, and 500 students rallied against Marine recruitment. That year, led by SDS, 40-50 students and a professor went to the Contract & Grants Office, "liberated" and published in the Indicator a file documenting secret and classified research at UCSD, including CIA work. (University officials have frequently expressed commitment to an open community of inquiry, and claimed that classified and secret research is contrary to the purpose of a university.) 6 students were selected for disciplinary action as a result of this action.

In April of 1970, students protested recruiters from the Naval Electronics Laboratory (operated by UCSD in collaboration with the Navy at Point Loma).

In May, 150-175 students occupied the AMES Dept. in Urey Hall—blending into a crowd of 500 supporters outside the building at the end of the day in order to avoid identification and prosecution.

2,000 students and community members demonstrated at the Naval Electronics Lab in order to call attention to this direct link of the University with the war machine.

the War Machine

1967-1972

To begin with, UCSD has played an important role in the entire UC system - in the maintenance and support of the U.S. war machine.

is based on the absolute proscription of anything which might be called action. Thus Defense Department-funded research (you know

The University - "Educator of tomorrow's leaders," "conscience"

The foregoing has only been an outline of some of the protests and demonstrations. The background of organizing, and the educational work done around UCSD complicity with the war machine made fewer headlines, but it was substantial and part of a period of international student "unrest."

UCSD's complicity could and had to be attacked. You should know

Equally important were student strikes-one to protest the brutal suppression of demonstrators in Berkeley who were protesting the UC Regents' decision to close People's Park, and another in the Spring of 1970 protesting the invasion of Cambodia and the shooting of students at Kent State and Jackson State universities. This latter strike has come to be called the National Student Strike of May-June 1970, and included the participation of faculty, labor and community groups, as well as strikes and protests at a vast number of universities, colleges and high schools.

And you should know about the teach-ins and demonstrations against the Vietnam War which created an atmosphere in which

This history covers highlights-but it should be remembered that for every rally or sit-in there were meetings, educational work and organizing that went on, which made these actions possible. Similarly, although - for convenience in presentation - this history divides events by issues, it must be remembered that the issues coexisted, were fought together and interacted. These are not single-issue movements; students were organizing around a wide variety of different issues at all times. To speak of the "Anti-War Movement" or the "Anti-

I PROMISE

Here in the University, we have a clear choice: to go along in lockstep complicity

Everywhere one looks,

People sleeping on sidewalks along busy streets in downtown San Diego while limousines daily parade through La Jolla is an obvious example

We've got a steel industry without any research and development

We've got buses that fall apart

The type of teaching and study/research fostered and conducted at UCSD and other top U.S. universities is one of the clearest manifestations of the effects of U.S. capitalism, right here in the heart of the empire

one can easily see the realities of a worldwide capitalist economy in crisis, and a U.S. imperialism increasingly unable to prop it up.

We must begin to initiate

If we don't, the university will continue to develop the instruments of war and greed instead of meeting human needs.

"We do not accept the notion that an administrator with a $40,000 salary is in exactly the same boat as a maintenance worker or secretary who makes ten thousand a year, or a teaching assistant who makes five. We do not think that a 'cost-of-living' increase that will be used to buy a third car, or a second house, or another thousand shares of stock is at all the same as one that will be used to buy food, to pay rent, or to pay for child care. We take seriously the idea that, especially in a time of economic crisis, resources should go to the people and programs that need them the most, and we think that, everything considered, those who already have the most have less need for more...

"We know that you can help us, because we know that you have helped others in situations that seemed much more 'impossible'-as when you found the money to continue paying the maintenance costs of the Chancellors' mansions after the Legislature refused to appropriate it. Now we are asking you to act on behalf of the University's most advanced students-who also happen to be the University's most poorly paid employees. And the answer which we will take back to the graduate students of UCSD from this meeting today will not be either 'They can,' or 'They can't,' but either 'They will,' or 'They won't.'"
